

Discovering Your Life Purpose

"There are two great days in a person's life - the day we are born and the day we discover why" - William Barclay

I have being on this path before, I know within I am smart but couldn't really figure out what's so special about me that I can offer the world, this discovery truly open the road to my real world. Have you discovered yours? If you do, living life will be easier and fun. Norman Cousins think "Death is not the greatest loss in life. The greatest loss is what dies inside us while we live." And I agreed with him. The reason behind this is inability to discover ones calling.

"The biggest adventure you can take is to live the life of your dreams" says Oprah Winfrey, if you can dream it, you will achieve it, that is an inspiration within me to support that wisdom. Discovery started with having a dream, a dream big enough to stretch your imagination. Charles R. Swindoll proclaimed "Life is 10% what happens to you and 90% how you react to it." This is true because I have come to realized many discoveries were born out of occurrence. So, always use positive lenses to view whatever happens to you.

The great Albert Einstein relates that "Life is like riding a bicycle. To keep your balance, you must keep moving." And I asked how? Fortunately, I am able to found the answer from John Dewey who believe "Education is not preparation for life; education is life itself." The more we learn the better we become. Wisdom I know without any doubt lies with people who love learning and sharing. If you will love to live a satisfying life, you may consider Pierre Teilhard de Chardin suggestion that "The most satisfying thing in life is to have been able to give a large part of one's self to others."
