ABSTRACT

The advent and introduction of Christianity in Edem-Ani is one of the good things that have happened to the community. This was because of the impacts that the Christian Missions have had on the people right from the time it came to the community to the recent times. These impacts centers around the traditions, culture, politics, economy, socio-religious and educational aspects of the people's lives. The researcher made use of primary and secondary sources of data collection, and adopted the phenomenological method of approach in handling data on the field. Though Christianity have made all these impacts on the community in the aspect of religion, culture and tradition, there is lack of literary documentation of the impact of Christianity on Edem-Ani. The researcher did not just focus on the positive aspects of these impacts, but also tries to uncover some other implications of the introduction of Christianity in the community.
