

THE EXISTENCE OF PROCREATION AND MAN'S ENCOUNTER WITH A WOMAN

He has always thought of himself as the only created thing by the gods, remained thankful to them for his life and offered sacrifices to gods of the sea, land, earth; he believed that everything he saw on earth had a god of its own which includes the trees and animals.

He lived among what he saw and met on his way, he felt happy being the one in-charge on earth, he only thought of other creatures that existed as lesser beings to him such as the animals but he had never seen a creature that was much like him.

He wandered around all time feeling safe in his environment because he thought of himself as the only supreme being the gods of different entities created out of their own sweat and each contributing their parts to make him being ignorant of a higher God.

In one of his journeys towards invading the earth and meeting new friends which he called 'lesser Beings', he came across a special kind of creature lying beside a mango tree with a curved body and nicely looking, it possessed certain features which he couldn't find in his own body.

He went closer to this very creature to feel what makes it look so special like him and possessed certain features he too had, in his attempt of feeling those bodies, the creature woke up suddenly and responded to his romantic gestures on her body.

What he had in his lower abdomen sprang up so quickly and in hesitation he wanted to see what the creature's own looked like, he saw something different from his, in quest he inserted what he had in his lower abdomen into what the creature had in her lower abdomen and he felt a load of pleasure in him and exploded a white substance into her and in time to come she gave birth to a human being as unique as themselves.

That was how procreation of human beings came to be ever since then and was marked man's first encounter with a special being much like him called "woman".