

The LION is not the KING of the JUNGLE!

What's this dude up to?

Well, I'm about to debunk the age long hoax that has been used in many legends and stories... and probably burst some bubbles.

Who is a king? A king is a leader.

A leader has a divine duty to protect his subjects. He does all in his power to guarantee the welfare of his followers. He is a guide, a mentor.

Ever watch Nat Geo Wild? I bet you have.

What do lions do? They sleeps all day and when hunger comes, they pack up in search for the fattest animals to feed on. These poor animals do the work of fattening themselves with constant feeding on herbs only for the lions to come for their flesh.

Any leadership in that?

It's so sad that many of our political, economic and even religious leaders adopt this 'lionian' style in their administration. Like the lion, they allow their subordinates to work off their a while they get the benefits without even considering their welfare.

Please throw away your long held traditional belief that the lion is the king of the jungle.

He is only the bully and dictator of the jungle!
