

What is Your Life Purpose?

“Success is knowing your purpose in life, growing to reach your maximum potential, and sowing seeds that benefit others. - John C Maxwell

You are created for a specific purpose that will contribute to the world development; to educate, to entertain, to innovate, to propagate or co-ordinate etc. You are one way better than people around you. Specialization is the origin of the earth; you cannot attain a significant achievement under dictation. No slave can proudly say; I am successful. “The secret to happiness is freedom... And the secret to freedom is courage” says Thucydides.

It is one thing to know your purpose in life; it is another thing to reach a recognizable position. Success is not automatic; you still have to work either smart or hard to reach the maximum potential. You have to be tough, because one way or another, the going will get tough, according to Jim Rohn, it is the tough that get going. One thing you should do from the beginning is to have a dream, make it big and keep it burning; have a plan, stick to it and change it when necessary; set a goal, write it down, and read it to yourself always. If you can follow this step, success is guaranteed.

In reality, being successful is still shallow if the people around you cannot fill your impact. You have to start giving back to the society. Thich Nhat Hanh have something to say on this that inspire me “Living our life deeply and with happiness, having time to care for our loved ones – this is another kind of success, another kind of power, and it is much more important.” One sure way of attain success is in being generous.
